

Classical Viennese Festival 2023 Participation Rules, Information, and Application

Overview

The Seattle International Piano Festival (SIPF) is proud to present the twelfth annual Classical Viennese Festival (recorded video edition) for pianists, and now inviting all instrumental performers. Participants of any nationality may participate. This competitive event was created to showcase classical and pre-classical sonata forms. Important for clarity and formal understanding, the sonata and related classical forms are often neglected or underrepresented in competitive events, and to provide performers with constructive feedback from performing and teaching masters. Participants will receive educational evaluations by performing for adjudicators, and a chance to receive certificates and medals during this competitive event.

This festival sets forth a number of age groups (now divided by 1-year brackets), as well as several narrowly defined performance categories so that they may be fairly judged, and generously decorated.

Festivals

The 2023 “Classical Viennese Festival” takes place exclusively as an online pre-recorded video event. The deadline to submit is 9:00 PM, ~~Monday, March 13~~ Tuesday, March 28, 2023, Pacific Standard Time (GMT-8).

The following age-related divisions are defined for participants:

- age 7 and under (non-competitive)
- youth divisions according to each numeric age as of March 13, up to age 18 (all participants compete with others of the same numeric age)
- collegiate (those currently pursuing a bachelor or equivalent degree in music)
- amateurs, ages 19 and older (not currently engaged in professional work or study in music)
- professional (those with a masters or higher degree or equivalent certification)

The following performance groups are defined for participants:

Pianists and Instrumentalists, alike:

Non-Competitive, Ages 7 or under — Participants, age 7 and under, eligible to participate in the non-competitive division will receive comments from adjudicators specifically tailored for how to prepare successfully for future fully-competitive events. All participants will receive gold stars and certificates. Participants may freely choose and mix from any classical area work or works up to the maximum allowed time and may be either piano or instrumental participants. Simplified arrangements of classical works are acceptable. Up to 4 minutes of music. Cost: $73

Variations of Classical Composers — Choose the theme and any number of consecutive variations within a single set (minimum: 3), equal to or less than the maximum duration. Up to 10 minutes of music. Piano accompaniment not required. Cost: $88

Instrumental Concerto — Choose one or two movements from a concerto by a classical era composer. Piano accompaniment need not be supplied. One movement (no time limit), or two movements of 9 min in length total or less. Cost: $88

Instrumental or Concerto Accompaniment. The participant need not supply a piano accompanist for their video recording. In such a case, the performer may exhibit his or her excerpts only, omitting tacit sections, provided no edited cuts are involved in the video compilation (video footage must still conform the standards found in “Video Submission”, below).

Performers of all divisions and groups may opt to select noncompetitive participation. The purpose of noncompetitive participation is to encourage more performers who wish to pursue the festival for purely educational reasons, for a chance to receive feedback from adjudicators, or for those who may be participating for the first time in such an event. Noncompetitive participants may wish to use the opportunity to “wet their toes” with regard to a competitive experience, perhaps selecting a competitive option during future festivals. Noncompetitive participants will not have their video links published, and will receive participation certificates and adjudicator commentary. Noncompetitive participants are encouraged, but not required, to memorize their chosen selections for performance.

Age delineation is determined according to the published deadline of March 13, 2023. In the case of any change to the deadline, a participant's age on March 13 still determines the category of division. There is no set limit regarding the number of students that a single teacher may submit. Likewise, teachers are in no way required to provide any volunteer assistance or pay any fee in order to submit students. Participants may choose to participate in more than one group; however, a separate accompanying application form and fee is required for each instance of participation.

The organizers reserve the right to divide exceptionally large groups into smaller sub-divisions based on age, sub-genre, number of movements, or any other criteria to help make participation more equitable. The organizers also reserve the right to reject applications that are incomplete or fail to adhere to the rules, standards, or style delineation; this can occur at any point during the festival period without prior notification. It is the sole responsibility of the participant to ensure completeness. The SIFP encourages participants to check all entries with one's primary instructor or write with questions to seattlepianointernational@gmail.com prior to entry. No opportunity to re-submit will be offered after the deadline. All participants will receive an automated confirmation message with complete application info. The SIFP takes no responsibility for application transmission errors.

RULES

Applications

Applications are available online at <https://www.seattlepianocompetition.org/nw-festivals/application/classical-online-form/>. In order to be considered for participation, applications must be filled out correctly and completely and payment made. Please refer frequently to <https://www.seattlepianocompetition.org/nw-festivals/classical/> for any updates, errata, judges information, and results.

Applications must be submitted by 9:00 pm on ~~Monday, March 13~~ Tuesday, March 28, 2023. The complete program with participant links will be published on our festival page shortly after the deadline closes.

Participants should receive an electronic confirmation notice with summary of registration immediately upon submission. If no notice arrives in the email account you specify on the entry form arrives within 10 minutes, notify the festival staff by writing to seattlepianointernational@gmail.com. The SIFP takes no responsibility for inaccurate, incomplete, or unsuccessful entry submissions.

The application fee is nonrefundable. In the case of entries rejected due to incomplete status or failure to adhere to rules or procedures after the entry deadline, a refund less a $30 processing fee applies.

Video Submission

All participants must submit publicly accessible videos via YouTube link (may be attached to the application, or entered later on this alternate video submission form). The SIFP takes no responsibility for videos that have permissions set to limit viewership or are published through any other video sharing platform (vimeo, etc). Ensure that your video is viewable by a third party, even if you choose to make them unlisted. Note that distinguished gold medal recipients will have their program and links published on our site for public viewing after the jurors' determination.

Participants are free to submit up to three separate video links when applying under categories that may include multiple movements or works (different movements or works are not required to be on the same video link). Participants familiar with previous editions no longer need to include a verbal introduction. However, the participant's name must be listed in the title of the link and/or in the contents description, and match exactly the name as it appears in the application form.

Submit a recorded video between now and ~~Monday, March 13~~ Tuesday, March 28 at 9:00 pm. If you choose to apply before you have prepared your video links, you may later return and submit your video via this online submission form. Record your chosen selection as many times as you would like.

Recordings must conform to the following standards and procedures:

- Name matching the performer (exactly as included on the application form) in the link title and/or the contents description, clearly visible (a briefly flashing caption bearing the performer's name does not satisfy this requirement, but may be included in addition to the stated requirement).

- Recordings must consist of unedited, uninterrupted video footage of the participant from a single camera angle with coverage of the performer's hands and face at all times (one track per single movement; separate tracks for multiple pieces or movements is permissible).
- Recordings must be cued to begin within five seconds of the start of the footage (may be edited to cut to a 5 second leader).
- Recordings must feature the work with which the participant originally entered on the application form (no changes to the stated repertoire will be allowed after applying).
- Recordings must be uploaded to YouTube and set for unlisted or public access (no private listings requiring permissions).

The entry form will accept your links. Enter the performer's name exactly the same as you entered in the original competition entry form. The form will go offline when the deadline lapses. Please ensure you receive an automated confirmation message within minutes of your entry. Failure to receive a message indicates a transmission issue or incomplete submission. If you don't get a confirmation immediately, write to seattlepianointernational@gmail.com

Repertoire

Participants are free to choose any works within the parameters defined in their chosen group. In cases of inconsistency, or uncertainty regarding a particular work, write to seattlepianointernational@gmail.com with the subject title: REPERTOIRE RULING. Ruling requests must be made before the application deadline. Please allow for 3-5 days for a response.

Note that, except where specified, works submitted must adhere to the commonly understood delineation of the Classical era (works written ca 1750-1820). Works before or after this era will not be accepted, except where defined in specific groups (such as "Pre-Classic Sonatas").

Participants must perform works strictly from memory. Amateur and non-competitive soloists are encouraged, but exempt from performing by memory.

No change in repertoire is allowed after the application submission.

Music Scores

Scores are not required for the online version of the 2023 Classical Viennese Festival.

Prizes and Results

Within each category, a number of gold, silver, and bronze medal winners will be named, along with an indeterminate number of honorable mentions. Among the prizes are medals and certificates. In addition, jurors will select a small number of "distinguished gold medalists", whose video performances will be featured on the winners' page. In the noncompetitive divisions, the adjudicator reserves the right to award a star of special artist promise. All Age 7 non-competitive participants will receive gold stars and award diplomas. The SIFP may ask distinguished gold medalists to take part in fund-raising or other concert events in the future. Any invitation to perform is based on the discretion of the SIFP board, and permission of the guardians of the performer as well as his/her instructor. Results will be published on or shortly after ~~March 27~~ April 11, 2023.

Each participant, his/her family, friends, and guests, and each teacher/coach must accept any juror's decision as final and unappealable. Attendees of the festival are prohibited from approaching, engaging with, or debating any aspect of the decision or his or her commentary with any juror at any time, whether through online or personal contact. Participants must furthermore treat the SIFP volunteers and organizers with respect, and may not debate or question results or commentary. Failure to adhere to this rule may permanently disbar the participant and/or all students of a participant's teacher from future such festivals and competitions. Contacting an adjudicator directly is strictly prohibited.

Any words of appreciation, complaints, comments, or suggestions may be submitted in written form and mailed to: 58 Front Street N, Ste 200, Issaquah, WA 98027.

Distribution of Awards

Local area participants whose instructors reside in King County (in the case of multiple entrants from a single teacher) or participants who reside in King County (in the case of a unique application from a single teacher or participant currently not working with a teacher) may pick up their awards at a time and place to be announced after the conclusion of the adjudication process. Please allow 4 weeks time after the announcement of results. After awards materials and comments are ready for distribution, the organizers will contact participants on how to arrange a pick up. Please do not contact any local area music stores regarding pick-up of festival materials. Participants of instructors outside of the King County, WA area will have materials couriered directly to his or her teacher (or directly to the participant in cases of individual participation or a participant without a current teacher). The SIPF reserves the right to assess an additional fee for international delivery (approximately $14.50 USD). Without an additional international delivery fee, materials will not be distributed.
